1. WPA plus, WPA2, WPA3: All wireless networks use some type of protocol for authenticating users and encrypting the data. WPA plus, WPA2, and WPA3 are the most secure and often preferred ones.
2. Basic Authentication: This protocol is the least secure. It uses a simple username and password to authenticate users. It is not recommended for use in any secure environment.
3. EAP (Extensible Authentication Protocol): This is a more complex protocol that can support a variety of authentication methods, including certificates, smart cards, and one-time passwords. It is often used in enterprise environments.
4. PEAP (Protected Extensible Authentication Protocol): This is a secure version of EAP that uses TLS (Transport Layer Security) to protect the authentication process. It is commonly used in enterprise environments.
5. LEAP (Lightweight Extensible Authentication Protocol): This is a Cisco-proprietary protocol that is designed for use in wireless networks. It is not as secure as WPA2 or WPA3.
6. RADIUS (Remote Authentication Dial-In User Service): This is a network protocol that is used for authentication, authorization, and accounting (AAA). It is often used in conjunction with other protocols like EAP or PEAP.
7. TACACS+ (Terminal Access Controller Access-Control System Plus): This is a network protocol that is used for authentication, authorization, and accounting (AAA). It is often used in conjunction with other protocols like EAP or PEAP.
8. Kerberos: This is a network authentication protocol that is used for authentication, authorization, and accounting (AAA). It is often used in conjunction with other protocols like EAP or PEAP.
9. OAuth (Open Authorization): This is a web-based protocol that is used for authorization. It is often used in conjunction with other protocols like EAP or PEAP.
10. SAML (Security Assertion Markup Language): This is a web-based protocol that is used for authentication and authorization. It is often used in conjunction with other protocols like EAP or PEAP.

 Questions

Q1) The first two (2) of the passage are the introduction. Explain the purpose of this part of the passage. (2 marks)

Q2) Answer the questions (3), (4), (5) and (6) in the passage. (4 marks)

- a. Write the main idea of the passage.
- b. Write the main idea of the passage.
- c. Write the main idea of the passage.
- d. Write the main idea of the passage.
- e. Write the main idea of the passage.
- f. Write the main idea of the passage.
- g. Write the main idea of the passage.
- h. Write the main idea of the passage.
- i. Write the main idea of the passage.
- j. Write the main idea of the passage.

1. Types of type systems
 - static type system (e.g. Java, C++)
 - o variables must be declared before use
 - o the compiler checks for well-formed programs
 - o this means, however, programs with bugs cannot be executed until manually checked and bugs present
 - o programmer can often not know program type
 - dynamic type system (e.g. Python, JavaScript)
 - o variables can be declared after use
 - o the compiler does not check for well-formed programs
 - o this means, however, programs with bugs can be executed
 - o programmer can often not know program type

Section 10 DFT from Fourier for DT and for CT

Section DFT from DTFT

1. Section 10.1: What things are included about DFT, covering the principle that this method is, where, where, etc. period, and what conditions for periodicity and other things that are included in the definition of DFT.
2. DFT from Fourier for discrete-time signals:
 1. DFT from Fourier for discrete-time signals: that is, the principle is that the DFT is the discrete-time Fourier transform of the discrete-time signal.
 2. DFT from Fourier for discrete-time signals: that is, the principle is that the DFT is the discrete-time Fourier transform of the discrete-time signal.
 3. DFT from Fourier for discrete-time signals: that is, the principle is that the DFT is the discrete-time Fourier transform of the discrete-time signal.
 4. DFT from Fourier for discrete-time signals: that is, the principle is that the DFT is the discrete-time Fourier transform of the discrete-time signal.
 5. DFT from Fourier for discrete-time signals: that is, the principle is that the DFT is the discrete-time Fourier transform of the discrete-time signal.
 6. DFT from Fourier for discrete-time signals: that is, the principle is that the DFT is the discrete-time Fourier transform of the discrete-time signal.
 7. DFT from Fourier for discrete-time signals: that is, the principle is that the DFT is the discrete-time Fourier transform of the discrete-time signal.
 8. DFT from Fourier for discrete-time signals: that is, the principle is that the DFT is the discrete-time Fourier transform of the discrete-time signal.

Section DFT from CTFT

1. Section 10.2: DFT from Fourier for CT:
